TEACHING/LEARNING INQUIRY CYCLE (TLIC) ASSESSMENT SCORING KEY

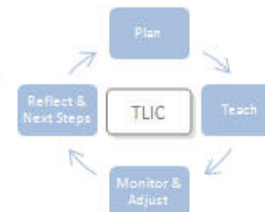

Awareness—TC can talk about it, recognize it when observed, but does not yet know how to do it.

Emerging Practice—TC can attempt it with significant support from CT/SC/SP.

Basic Practice—TC can implement it on their own with some support and some success.

Proficient Practice—TC can implement it on their own with consistency and success.

Advanced Practice—TC can implement on their own & is considered a model for this practice.

1. TC develops a comprehensive understanding of students' backgrounds (e.g., cultural, linguistic, ability, interests, etc.) through multiple means, recognizes this diversity as an asset to learning, and utilizes this knowledge to plan instruction.
2. TC develops a comprehensive understanding of students' academic, behavioral, and social needs through a variety of diagnostic assessment practices (both formative and summative assessments) and utilizes this knowledge to plan instruction that is responsive to this diversity.
3. With the support of the CT, TC uses a variety of strategies to build positive relationships with families and engages with families to understand and incorporate their Funds of Knowledge about their children as learners when planning instruction.
4. TC is familiar with any specific needs identified on specialized instructional support plans (e.g., 504 plans, IEPs, ALPs, or READ Plans, etc) for their students and ensures that these needs are
